

Bi Social Network got an invitation to interview the queen of dish and celebrity news with Kathy Griffin. The new show kickoff in April on Bravo called "KATHY" and she didn't disappoint on all the latest gossip!

I will admit I was a little nervous listening to a few big, gay and small media outlets get entertainment questions answered. But what's a bisexual girl to do---ask a bi question. Below is the transcript from the interview:

Hi Kathy, how are you?

What's Bi Social Network?

Bi Social Network. That's right, it's the first media hub for bisexuals, and we love you too!

You want to get Andy Dick, because he could be your poster child.

I wish we could, hey introduce me—please.

Well he's in a box outside the (abbey) on (Robertson). No, it's funny. I asked Andy one time, I said, you know, "What is your sexual orientation?" And he basically just said, "When I'm with a girl and I love her and she's really beautiful, I think oh my gosh she's so beautiful, I love her until I start looking at boys. And then I see a boy who's beautiful and then I want to be with him." So just so you know, my intricate knowledge of bisexuality is as told to me by Andy Dick, who may or may not have been under the influence of crack. So thank God for your network!

Yes, It's been about three years, but we want to ask you a question.

Are you going to have more topics of bi content? For example, what's your take on all the bisexuals that are coming out in Hollywood? This started last year in 2011, such as an Anna Paquin, and it's moving on so, what's your take on that?

Honey, let me tell you something, the struggle on this show is to get one fucking heterosexual. All right, trust me, this show basically is straight-bashing at this point. I have more bisexuals—look, I'm probably going to write your column or blog or Web world for the next three years just based on my first panel. We are very, very LGBTQIA-friendly. We talk about those issues. And what I'm really proud of is Bravo has actually just given me my own campaign because, you know, obviously I tell my dick jokes. But in my real life I go to the Hill and I have rallies and I've been doing all that stuff for a long time. So my tentacles have been reaching into the LGBTQIA community long before this show started. So I promise you'll be represented.

Now, I can't speak for them because, you know, on this show I don't know what is going to come out of anyone's mouth, mostly my 91-year-old alcoholic mother. But you will probably see more bisexual people on this show per capita than you even knew existed on the planet, much less on any other show.

Kathy shows airs every Thursday @ 10 p.m., ET/PT

For tour dates and more information on Kathy, please visit her website at www.kathygriffin.net.

NBC Universal - Kathy Griffin